A passion for work. A heart for the environment.

Ecology and environmental protection are elements of the corporate philosophy that Sedus pursues each and every day. It applies to our work processes, the demands we make of suppliers and how we handle materials. We believe that aside from a work method which preserves resources, recycling-orientated product design, using ecologically tested materials and energy-saving production, what really counts is the quality of the product. After all, there is nothing better for the environment than a durable product.

temptation

With temptation, Sedus is introducing a basic desking range to the market which combines innovative design with intelligent technology and offers excellent value for money.
Design: Andreas Struppler

The highly functional Sedus model pedestal and storage unit range can be combined with all Sedus office furnishing lines and is available in matching laminate and veneer finishes.

activation

This versatile desking and storage unit range with a perfectly coordinated modular system offers an ideal introduction to the multifaceted Sedus office world. It was designed for customers who are looking for reasonably priced office furniture that they know will still be available if they need to extend in future. A special advantage of the storage unit system is its modular structure. Units with and without plinths can be combined or stacked as required within the system heights of two to six rows of binders.

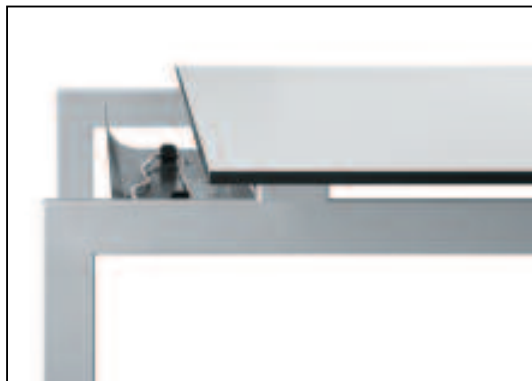

ambition

This sophisticated office furniture system is ideal for configuring every conceivable office perfectly – from single workstations to group and combi offices, or even the boardroom. The sturdy desking range is based on a cross-rail system with state-of-the-art technology. Together with six different frames and a variety of table top formats with laminate and real wood finishes it will meet all your functional and style needs. The ambition desking line is complemented by a highly functional storage unit and mobile pedestal range that enables you to create the ideal office (storage) space.

Sedus zenon is a desk system specially developed for the use of high-pressure laminate boards. It creates the impression that the worktop is floating above its linear frame. Top view or front view, close-up or from a distance – whichever way you look at it, zenon brings clean, geometric architectural shapes into the office world. Keeping to the essentials, zenon and its matching pedestals offer plenty of space for the creative exchange of ideas and important discussions, as well as ample room for storage.

relations

With its unique furnishing concept, relations offers an integral solution that combines function, design and ergonomics to create a new emotional office culture and the optimal environment for efficient working practices. Sedus relations is a furnishing system whose transparent and inspiring design integrates elements such as desk, storage unit, pedestal and accessories in both form and function. It is suitable for furnishing not only the most varied types of office, but also seminar, meeting and teamwork rooms. Design: Andreas Struppler invitation

The way we work today demands constant communication and interaction on the one hand, and a high level of concentration on the other. The invitation system bench meets these requirements, as its module design allows for both individual and team work.

invitation can be customised to any work situation: small single or double units are possible, as are large table systems for many workstations.

Design: Mathias Seiler

working wall

working wall is an optimal solution for flexible, process-orientated workstation design. Combines functionality and elegance. A versatile, modular tool – which can be extended at any time – working wall supports all work processes and enhances the technical infrastructure of your office. Wherever people meet, communicate, exchange information and work, they have a “silent partner” in working wall. Highly flexible and compatible with Sedus reception desks.

Screens

Whether in an open-plan office or an open space office environment, screens form areas and work stations and offer a flexible element for ensuring optimal privacy and sound-proofing. The screens can stand alone or be mounted directly on or behind work desks and are available in many attractive fabrics and designs.

Conference tables

All Sedus table systems are suitable for furnishing high-quality seminar, conference and meeting rooms. An economical solution is provided by the freely combinable individual tables from the activation range. And the ambition system, with six different frame versions, lends itself to creating sophisticated and spacious table configurations. The invitation range (illustrated) – also infinitely extendable – is the right choice for prestigious conference suites.

Reception desks

A friendly, open atmosphere extends a warm welcome! Intelligent counter and reception desk solutions create a favourable impression from the moment a customer steps through the door. The ingeniously designed linkage system enables countless different configurations and sizes. Sedus provides solutions that allow reception and consultation conversations to be combined harmoniously and efficiently.
